KINGSFORD-SMITH ENDS FLIGHT

NEW YORK—Employment, and no relief does, is urged by Henry Ford in an interview published last week in Collier's Weekly. "People don't think anyone for a dime," says the automobile manufacturer. "That is something the politicians don't seem to know. They think they are making wages turn the dole gives. They are only making enemies. The dole-takers all ways turn the dole gives. They would want anyone who gave them work the chance to be independent, but they hate anyone who punishes them."

WASHINGTON—It has been said that hunters in the United States in the past have slaughtered game birds far in excess to the number taken in Canada, and recently it has been estimated that more than 7,000,000 licensed hunters in the United States follow their favorite sport. These hunters turn in $10,000,000 in license fees to state and government coffers.

OTTAWA—Names of shareholders in the Bank of Canada have been published in blue book form and the list circulated among all subscribers to facilitate the selection of candidates for the seven directorships that must be filled within the next three months. While the statutory provision fixed at 50 the number of shares obtainable by any one subscriber there was such a flood of applications that in the final allocation the limit for any one person was cut down to 15. From every province, Yukon and the Northwest Territories, the subscriptions came from those in every walk of life, except bankers, bank directors and employees who were barred by the statute from owning shares in the new Central Bank.

CADMAN-WATKINS

The marriage of Mr. T. O. Cadman and Mrs. S. Watkins was quietly solemnized at St. Augustine Church, Opeka, by the Rev. Durk, at 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 27. The best man was Mr. S. Stoen, and the matron of honor was Mrs. W. Levins, while the bride was given away by Mr. G. W. Isaac.

The bride and groom left Calgary to journey to Delta the next day and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris, returning home on Monday. Following their return home a reception was held for the happy couple and about 50 guests were present. A jolly time was had on this occasion and the newly weds were the recipients of many beautiful wedding gifts.

LIBERALS WOULD INCREASE PRESENT SIZE OF ALBERTA

Advocating a policy which would enlarge the Province of Alberta to more than double its present size by taking in all that part of the North West Territories which lies west of the northern extension of the fourth meridian to Coronation Gulf in the Arctic ocean and east of the Yukon boundary, and which would bring into the confines of the province one of the most richly mineralized areas in the world, J. H. Stewart, M.L.A., Liberal leader in Alberta, recently disclosed the fact that this policy would be one of the features of the Liberal platform in the forthcoming provincial election.

The present area of Alberta is 266,000 square miles. The carrying out of the Liberal leader's policy would more than double this and would bring into the province of Alberta not only one-third of Lake Athabasca, where sensational oil strikes have recently been made, but all of the Great Slave Lake, Great Bear Lake and the Mackenzie River basin and delta, with all the tremendous natural resources which are now known to exist in these areas. It also would include the Fort Norman oil field and the great fur-bearing and fishing areas of the north.

It looks as if the local detachment of the R.C.M.P. in charge of Const. Steeves, will remain. The cell, which was dismantled this spring has been re-assembled.

E. J. Garland Addresses Carbon Audience Here

A fairly well attended meeting was held in the Farmers' Exchange hall last Wednesday evening, October 30, when E. J. Garland, M.P. for Bow River constituency addressed a gathering of constituents.

According to Mr. Garland the privately-owned Central bank recently instituted by the Conservative government is of no value to the bulk of the people, and he expressed fear that the Central Banking scheme would eventually place Canada under the control of the "ruthless English banking system."

Giving a resume of the past session at Ottawa, the member for Bow River told his audience that the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act was not as helpful to the farmer as he had hoped. It might provide a cheap method for a farmer to get bankrupt. During his address Mr. Garland dealt at length with the disclosure of the Stevens Commission in which it had been revealed that while a few business houses were being grossly overpaid, thousands of people were suffering from the effects of under payment.

Touching on the platform of the C.C.P., the speaker announced that the program definitely repudiated coalition. We are after the exchangers, not the exploited, and we have no thought of nationalizing the land, he remarked.

Mr. Garland also addressed the gathering and outlined the strategy of his phase of the U.P.A.

Jas. Gordon acted as chairman.

POPPY DAY

The symbolism of the Poppy, the universal appropriation of its red blood bloom, takes a deeper significance with each succeeding year. The Great War is passing almost into legend, a generation is being taught of carry into the years that have yet to come the work and the ideals of those who the Poppy commemorates.

Canada has adopted the Poppy as a symbol of the 60,000 graves in France and Belgium in which lie the dead of the preceding generation, because of the 15,000 Canadians to whom the conflict brought disability of one kind or another. The crosses in the cemeteries of Flanders are garlanded with Poppies, colorful emblems of a nation's youth consumed in the "War-red fire of War."

On Poppy Day this Dominion people in its normal activities to recall the sacrifices of its young men, to pay tribute to their heroism, their hardihood and the uncomplaining fortitude with which they bore their privations and sufferings. At the same time, Canada strives to highlight in action a small measure, an obligation to those disabled men employed in the Veterans' Workshops of the Country, whose only means of livelihood is the making of these simple emblems.

The wide ramifications of the great Canadian Legion, with its tens of thousands of workers on Poppy Day, take care of the distribution of these Poppies throughout Canada. There is thus ensured to their disabled comrades in these Veterans' Shops a local performance of a sorrowful yet proud task.

All Canadians of every age and degree should wear a symbol on Poppy Day, especially where a local organization is sponsoring the sale of them. That surely is a day of re-consecration and of re-dedication to the work on behalf of continuing the structure of civilization where the workers of a previous generation left off.

AN ORDINARY WINTER IS PREDICTED BY INDIANS

Saturday a snowdrift, dropped into this office and greatly informed us that a very severe winter was forthcoming. This statement caused us some concern as we looked at our depleted outfit. To all our fears we hastened over to the Blackfoot Indian reserve and encountered one of the old Indians. After quickly examining his pile and filled it from our pouch, he suddenly looked at the sky for several minutes and informed us that winter would not be a severe winter. The rabbits have not even commenced to take their winter apparel and were hopping around in their summer garments.

Questioned as to the goose and the ducks moving South, the old man gave the reason of lack of water in Southern Alberta, hence they would move South for water. There will naturally be some cold weather, but December would not prove a hard month and in all probability Christmas would be enjoying mild weather. Fire in the mountains had naturally driven the animals down to the foothills but it was no indication of a severe winter. Flophers were still abounding around the countryside and had not made arrangements for his storm deposits of grub and nature generally showed a mild winter, not a severe one.

Let's be optimistic and hope the Indian is right. We are going to have lots of chinooks according to this old fellow so after all, the outlook is not so bad as some of the weather noifs have predicted. Let's keep smiling—Gleichen Call.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND INDUSTRY

"Creation of the new department of trade and industry of the provincial government, proclamation of the act passed at last week and the nomination of Hon. Geo. Hoodless as minister in charge, with William Anderson, of Edmonton as deputy, was announced recently by Premier Balfour."

To relieve Mr. Hoodless of some of his other duties, the intention branch will be transferred to the department of agriculture.

The government does not propose to change the act, for industry under the new act, until a thorough survey of the industrial situation of the province has been made by the new deputy. No policies will be announced respecting the enforcement of the provisions of the act in this respect until such survey is made.

One of the important phases of the new department will be the survey and development of the natural resources of the province, considerable attention will be paid to the expansion of the work already done along these lines.

NOVEMBER 11TH, 1934

Twelve fourteen years ago today When guns of war were hidden "aces" In gratitude we celebrate This Anniversary of Peace.

Oh, heroes of the boundless deep, Soldiers of Plunder's Field, sleep on; Our love enshrined in memory Burns high, is ever burning on.

Ye men who yield the nation's power, God grant that you may always be that covenant—"If ye break faith, We shall not sleep, in Flanders Field."

They died for Honor, Freedom, Peace, but their flaming "torch" must never die.

They die it back in trust to you! With pride "The years to hold it high."

God, guard the Souls of those who died.

Ease them, the yarning, and despair.

Oh lonely hearts, of those who mourn: We ask of Thee, Oh God, in prayer.

ALBERTA ELECTION FORECAST FOR NEXT JUNE

EDMONTON—The next provincial general election to be held between June 15 and June 26, passing up the by-election to fill the Edmonton seat left vacant by death of C. L. Gibson (Labor), and no session before Christmas, are three facts that concerned fairly definitely from the three-day U.P.A. caucus held in Edmonton and which concluded last Saturday night. While members have been reluctant to discuss any of these matters in a definite way, it is believed that they were all settled.

It is believed Premier R. B. Balfour, within the next few days will make some announcement on the general election, which will leave a long-haul for passing up the by-election. None of the parties have any anxiety for a by-election at present. W. H. Hume, provincial Liberal leader has said: "A by-election is no good to him; the he will be attacked only with a general election. Others feel that by an appeal alone can the will of the voters be determined."

Arthur Bitz Dies Following An Operation

Following a brief illness, Arthur Bitz died in the hospital, Calgary, on Monday morning.

Deceased underwent an apparently operation some two weeks ago and did not rally afterwards and passed away on Monday.

Arthur was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Bitz, Carbon, and was nine years of age. He was born in his loss his parents, two brothers and three sisters. The lad was born in Carbon, but grew up in Calgary.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, November 27th, at 2 o'clock, from the First Baptist Church, and were conducted by Rev. A. H. Hume.

10. THE LADIES

In our first article of this series we said that Sheet, although an unusual amongst sports, is truly democratic, that it is within the financial grasp of all. It is no more than this, Sheet is a sport for everyone, young or old, and regardless of sex. Here is the established outdoor sport in which the ladies may meet the sterner sex on an equal basis.

It pays no premium to muscular strength or masculine endurance. It is a contest of wit, of keen eye and quick nerve. Women, with fairer hands than men, may, and do, participate without any sense of handicap and with tremendous success.

The modern woman, therefore, since she is always on the go and thrilled with new sensations, finds in Sheet enjoyment and fun. Then, too, happy family parties may be arranged in the Sheet field. Mother is no longer neglected, today at home with daughter, while the male members of the family depart to indulge in their various sports.

Furthermore, a woman's ingenuity helps on the rapid skill of slugs. But most girls do not like, and certainly one that fits well, a Sheet of two and this and the conception will fall into the background.

As a last word to the ladies, or for the men readers to add to their persuasive arguments, what they lack their women folk on the subject of Sheet is the six hundred or so of Sheet clubs which are flourishing.

today in the United States, there are many hundreds of women members of Sheet clubs. They are situated in a high degree of proficiency, as may be seen by the fact that they are now sponsoring magazines that run a Sheet of two and this and the conception will fall into the background.

"If you are of normal physical make-up, and have fair eyesight, and are willing to go through the primary stages that the beginner in any worthwhile sport must pass, you can join the group on the Sheet field, enjoy every minute of the moment to prove this to be a fact."

This is No. 10 of a series of 12 articles on Sheet Shooting. Cut it out. When all have been clipped, you will have a complete write-up of this sportsman's sport which is rapidly becoming the rage across Canada.

GEORGE B. RODNEY

SYNOPSIS

"You're fatter than a half-horse in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been a remarkably looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to see what was brewing for himself—so as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Duro Rint, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward without outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless promoter, it's now a return to let Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grumbled him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of it. He sees Broken Spur men pulling Hour-Glass cattle and property around it.

Joe Carr's daughter, Edith, reminds Dustin when he wished to make him acquaintance, saying when she walked with a man, it would not be with a squaw man. He plans revenge, but has had no opportunity so far. Affairs on the ranch going from bad to worse, Joe Carr takes to drink.

(Now we turn to the story)

Spike gaped at him. Then very slowly realization came. His eyes glanced and his red face got redder and his wire-fist seemed to bristle like the mane of an angry bulldog.

"You know how these damned old fools of prospectors talk. Their matters were old Kane can square himself with Joe Carr by letting him in on what he found on the Hour-Glass land. See now?"

"I never see any one to talk to in six months. When they do get in the dam gives away and there's a flood. If old Dad Kane goes in this Seco he'll tell about his gold-fund just as sure as God made little apples. He can't help it. The matter of Gray and Corse is bound to come out.

Still Spike stared at him. The full import of what Dustin said had not yet sunk in.

"They'll hardly dare tell what they do," he growled. "I'll mean jail for them, too."

"They'll turn State's evidence and get exemption. That's the way Burke, the Prosecution Attorney, wins his cases. You poor fool. Can't you see?"

"You'll look good in a striped suit. . . if it gets that far?"

"What do you mean by that?" "If it gets that far?"

"Huh. That's easy. We're more popular in the Valley. There ain't a Dry Farmer in thirty miles that don't want our holsters. If we win that suit over Soda Springs I'll throw 'em on public lands. They'll be open to all the Dry Farmers."

"They can water their sheep there, too. That'll ruin 'em for cattle. Even you know that."

Spike nodded at that truth; the real reason for the constant feud between sheep and cattle-men.

"It will make no difference to you or me," said Dustin slowly. "We'll be tucked away where nobody can hurt us."

"I tell you, . . . We're in a hell of a fix. I don't know how now just what our men have been told. Those men will swear to clear themselves, that they were only carrying out orders from me. I'll all come out. . . To make

Spike Goddard licked his lips in silence and stared at his partner with a feral glare that promised ill to his enemy. He was not a particularly strong man but like most men of his kind, who drive to bay he could fight desperately.

"Well," he croaked, "what's the answer?"

"That's easy. . . " Dustin drew a breath of relief. To plan as he had planned in the last ten minutes was one thing. But man planning device needs help. He knew now that he could count on Spike as never before. Dustin went on:

"You and me, Spike, have made too much off the Hour-glass to let it ever get into court. Even old man Carr with all his drunken suspicions, don't know what we've milked him for. Thank the Lord we've been too careful to show the source of our income but. . . We've got a nicewad of cash right now in the office safe. Too dangerous to put it in the Seco bank. I figured we must need it for a get-away if one one splits the beans. . . Like old Dad Kane. He can do it any minute. . . chooses to open his mouth and talk. The matter boils down to this. . . Old Dad Kane has come in here with the finest ore we've ever seen. It was found on the Hour-glass lands and old man Carr doesn't know of it. While he was looking for that ore Kane found some of our men at work and can send us to jail for what we saw 'em doing. Get me? You know what's got to be done. I needn't name it. What's the answer?"

Spike Goddard knew that answer but like his partner he dared not say it in speech. Dustin finally dared it.

"Old Kane has got to show us where he found the stuff and then we'll get to disappear," he said.

For a long moment silence fell; a silence in which a cricket in the wall chirped loudly and the ticking of a cheap clock on the table sounded like the crack of doom. Spike poured himself another drink. He needed it badly. He knew what was meant.

"How?" he asked hoarsely.

"The less you know personally about it the better for us both," said Dustin. "It's a one-man job and I trust no other man where my own life is at stake. All I say is that I'm not going to jail to please old man Kane or Carr either. But you!"

"It sure does. . . " Spike had sudden visions of himself in a striped suit and he did not admire it. "I'll help you. . . "

"Help me hell," said Dustin fiercely. "If you let it's a one-man job. One-and-a-half that is. First I'm going in to Seco on business. Be sure you keep old Dad Kane here. Don't let him leave on any excuse. Tell him I've gone to make arrangements for him to go back to open the mine."

"Keep him here till I get back. I want to find out all I can about old Kane's finances."

"Huh. From all I hear he ain't got any. How'll you find out?"

"I've got ways you never thought of. . . " Dustin grinned as a couple of guys at night of game, the really big thing for us just now is to make Kane show us exactly where his location is. It'd be right bright to have him disappear and then find out we don't know where he found the gold."

"He feared himself another hand and picked up his hat. . . "

"I'll be on my way," he said. "Be sure you ride hard on Kane."

Spike watched the departing car and when its following dust-cloud was swallowed up turned away to the kitchen.

He was under no illusions as to what Dustin meant when he said that Kane must disappear. During the many years of their partnership he had seen some curious things. Sometimes he thought that that very partnership was the only reason for their mutual safety. Either could hang the other by too much talk. He knew Dustin was cautious and ruthless and he knew suddenly that his "find" of old man Kane would put them both beyond any further need of more money. Dustin was right.

"It'll probably bring home the bacon," he muttered. "Even if he has to kill somebody else's hog to get it."

That was exactly what Stan Dustin proposed to do. He knew that the conscienceless suit over Soda Springs had cost Carr more than he had. He knew that the Broken Spur transactions on the herds of the Hour-glass had put that ranch in the red. He was sure that Joe Carr must owe a lot of money and he meant to find out to whom he owed it. Dustin believed in the strong hand and he knew that Solomon was right when he said: "The borrower is servant to the lender." It was dark when he parked his car before the sheet-metal-fronted saloon in Seco. He strode down the main street, turned off at a dark alley and stopped at a little frame bungalow set well back in a clump of dusty Chinaberry trees. The hour flew open at his knock and, almost instantly, an old woman holding a stinking skewers jump above her head, stood facing him.

"Evenin', Miss Peter," he said civilly enough, "Sim in?"

"He went for the mail," she said. "Peter. He ought to be back in a minute. Come in, Miss' Dustin. There comes Sim now," she added.

Something To Know

If you want to revitalize lettuce or other salad greens, put them in a pan of ice water to which has been added a cupful of vinegar. Let them set for half an hour and they'll be quite crisp. Incidentally, if you wrap lettuce in a damp towel and stick the ends of the towel in a dish of water, it will keep fresh for days.

The teachers convention is being held in Calgary this week.

Hallowe'en prank's were not of a serious nature in Carbon this year, and the greatest enjoyment was in watching some of the younger lads washing Kathleen Neale's windows.

Services will be held at the Anglican church, Carbon on Sunday evening, November 11th, at 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. E. Key returned recently from Harris, Ont., where she was called to attend the funeral of her mother.

Rev. McNeish spent Wednesday and Thursday attending the Sunday School convention in Three Hills.

The weather remains fine although cloudy skies prevail at times. Freezing usually comes about this time every year.

CANADIAN WRITES OF CRUISE

Thoughts of travel to far places where hot sunny days make nature's covering seem more reasonable than fur coats are coincident with the sound of cold rattling into cellars in preparation for the long winter, and a very timely book that will be of great assistance to travel-minded people has just appeared. It is "—and ships—and sealing-wax", by Alan Maurice Irwin, published by Macmillan, and this book is a collection of his impressions, a companionable, intriguing sort of book in which he has written delightfully of nice and naughty things, handled a hard-working camera with becoming discretion, and argues in the manner of Kipling that the "Colonel's lady and John O'Hare are sisters under the skin."

The Mediterranean, Egypt, India—where the author lunched with Lord and Lady Willington, the Malay Peninsula, little known Cambodia, China, Japan—even Hollywood, are amongst the places he writes about.

India, a country that has suffered at the hands of those whose trade is writing, comes in for some rather rabid debunking; tropic nights and tropical seas come in for some rather good descriptions. Simple, homely adventures amongst the simple, homely people of Bali develop the amusing knowledge that the women of this modern Eden are very interested in step-ins and other alien things.

S. Morano-Bowell, noted literary critic of the Montreal Star, writing of "—and ships—and sealing-wax", says: "Mr. Irwin has the light, whimsical touch invaluable for such a record as this, since it enabled him not only to remember what is vivid but to forget what is not worthy of remembrance. It also provides a most attractive medium by which to stimulate the interest of those who have hitherto been compelled for one reason or another, to enjoy their travels abroad vicariously."

On January 10 the Empress of Britain sets out again on her cruise around the world, visiting the ports that provided the copy for "—and ships—and sealing-wax". Her 400 passengers will see the scenes described in the book, experience encounters similar to those recorded by the author, and bring the 130 days they are away, will call at 22 ports in 24 different countries.

For those who do not make the cruise this reviewer recommends "—and ships—and sealing-wax", for those who do it is a practical text book.

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense.

Yet every time she lays an egg she cackles forth the fact.

The watch-dog bark and gambles quick, and doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and struts, like silent and subtle sin.

And even serpents know enough to hiss before they sting.

But man, the greatest masterpiece that Nature could devise,

Will often stop and hesitate before he'll advertise.

Let Us Do Your Printing?

All business houses need more or less printed matter, all of which is within the possibilities of the local printer. Yet how prone many are to pass up the home printer and let the orders go to city offices which have no interest whatever in rural communities except to get printing orders and the cash to pay for them. Business men, remember that the home paper is constantly promoting the interests of the home community and you owe it to yourself and your local paper to back up these efforts by at least having your printed matter done locally.
